iOS Mirroring

Bridging Voice

Control your iPhone or iPad from an eye tracker

A groundbreaking innovation

For people with mobility limitations, the transition to a Windows-based eye tracker used to mean the loss of independent control over iPhones or iPads, as the two systems were not designed to work together. This completely cut off daily routines and critical methods of communication.

Bridging Voice's iOS Mirroring is the first-ever solution to restore that ability. It allows users to control their iPhones and iPads directly from a Windows device using a wide range of access methods, including eye gaze, mouse or trackpad, switches, and alternative keyboards. This is a major step forward for people living with ALS and others who rely on assistive technology.

iOS Mirroring enables someone who can no longer physically touch their phone or tablet to:

- Send emails, iMessages, and group messages
- Make phone/video calls and FaceTime
- Look at iCloud photos and join shared albums
- Access health portals and telehealth tools
- Control smart home devices
- Play games and use social media
- Stay connected to family, friends, & care teams

Before iOS Mirroring, I had to ask someone to help me read and respond to text messages. Now I can do all of that myself, and much more. It's an invaluable tool that allows me to remain independent and feel a sense of accomplishment and connection with the people I care about.
